Just another way to tell you
That I think the world of you,
Just another way to thank you
For the thoughtful things you do,
Just another way to wish you
All that's happy, Mum and Dad...
May this Christmas be among the best
That you have ever had!

Merry Christmas
With Love

Population and conservation status

"Most lions now live in eastern and southern Africa, and their numbers there are rapidly decreasing, with an estimated 30–50% decline over the last two decades"(Contoso 2020). Estimates of the African lion population range between 16,500 and 47,000 living in the wild in 2002–2004, down from early 1990's estimates that ranged as high as 100,000 and 400,000 in 1950. "Primary causes of the decline include disease and human interference" (Contoso 2018). Habitat loss and conflicts with humans are considered the most significant threats to the species.

The remaining populations are often geographically isolated from one another, which can lead to inbreeding, and so, reduced genetic diversity. Therefore, the lion is considered a vulnerable species by the International Union for Conservation of Nature, while the Asiatic subspecies is endangered. The lion population in the region of West Africa is isolated from lion populations of Central Africa, with little or no exchange of breeding individuals. The number of mature individuals in West Africa is estimated by two separate recent surveys. There is disagreement over the size of the largest individual population in West Africa: the estimates range from 100 to 400 lions in Burkina Faso's Arly-Singou ecosystem.
